A PRETTY PICTURE AND A PRETTY PIECE OF WORK.

Cribb.

This Exquisitely Clear Illustration, with the Lovely Grand Harbour of Valetta for a Background, shows an Anchor being got Inboard on the "Rupert," the Little Single-turretted Battle-ship that does Duty as Port Guard-ship at Alexandria. The "Rupert" has just had a Refit at Malta Dockyard, and this completed, she is Shippng the Big Anchor from One of the Dockyard Lighters. A Temporary Derrick had to be Rigged to Swing the Anchor Up to the "Rupert's" Deck, and then it was taken in Charge by the Ship's Derrick and Swung to its Place on the "Anchor Bill," as the Place where the Anchor is Stowed is Called.
